Too often state fire inspectors find rooms and offices filled to capacity with an array of paper, books, boxes, and magazines along with a myriad of other combustible materials.

To the owner every document is important - to a fire every document is fuel - fuel to feed upon, fuel to grow from, fuel to burn!

Citations are issued in instances where the inspector determines that the fuel loading is creating a fire hazard - and those persons responsible will be expected to clean up after themselves.

Remember, fire doesn't discriminate between faculty, staff or student. It happily feeds on everyone's stuff.

§F315.2 Storage in buildings. Storage of combustible materials in buildings shall be orderly.
